

Maximizing Mystery Fiction Connections OR What Mystery Authors Can Do For You – visit sistersincrimecentralvirginia.com and scroll down the membership & contact page for a linked pdf version of session notes. Presenters Rosemary Shomaker and Linda Thornburg oriented attendees to resources available from local and national mystery writer organizations and from mystery reader groups while suggesting how each could aid library professionals in enhancing their mystery fiction collections, displays, activities, Readers’ Advisory training, and programs. Sisters in Crime – Central Virginia offers that working with local mystery writers is a win-win for authors and libraries – authors appreciate access to library facilities and patrons as they market their books, and libraries can round out programming and attract new patrons through voluntary mystery writer assistance. Presenters promoted relationship building between Virginia’s libraries and Virginia authors, encouraging attendees to access authors through regional writing and genre fiction organizations active in Virginia.
