Reviews

- Library Journal Prepub Alert (1 Oct. 2021.) “Raised in an ultra-orthodox Jewish household and married off at age 19 to a man she barely knew, Haart made a Brazen decision more than two decades later, surreptitiously earning enough money to break away, then entering the fashion world, and finally becoming CEO and co-owner of the modeling agency Elite World Group.”

Response to challenges

This is a book that explores the author’s restrictive orthodox Jewish life and her desire to escape the strict life that was imposed upon her since birth. The author leaves her community and embarks on a secular life. There are descriptive passages of religion and sex, but nothing to indicate why this book would be challenged.
